Landcare Is For Everyone

Our mission is to rehabilitate those we work with through environmental care and deeper community connection... whilst having lots of fun!

ABOUT US

We're based at the Windana Maryknoll Therapeutic Community and are a longstanding member of the Western Port Catchment Landcare Network. Windana supports individuals facing a broad range of psycho-social challenges, and uses a "community as method" rehabilitation model.

The Western Port Intrepid Landcare approach connects volunteers with nature through hands-on environmental work paired with outdoor recreational activities - leading to rehabilitation and restoration for all involved.

Our group focuses on coastal conservation and the biodiversity of Back Creek, particularly woody weed management in habitat that supports the vulnerable Growling Grass Frog, and endangered Southern Brown Bandicoot.

We are not your usual on-the-ground 'Landcare group'... we're an adventurous organisation that empowers young people to do stuff that matters. We provide a common space to inspire, connect and empower participants to act and lead with Landcare.

Our group leaders are industry experts in outdoor recreation education and environmental management, and run youth leadership mentoring camps.

Our volunteers gain practical skills in environmental care, pest plant control, mentoring, and leadership through group activities which aim to build wellbeing, confidence and strong personal connections to nature and the community.
